FINANCIAL DISCLOSURE

The journal must ensure balance, independence, objectivity and scientific rigor in all its publications. The journal does not view the existence of financial interests or commitments as necessarily implying bias or decreasing the value to readers. Nevertheless, authors are expected to disclose to the readership any significant financial interest or other relationship within the last three years (1) with the manufacturer(s) of any commercial product(s) and/or provider(s) of commercial services discussed in the publication, and (2) with any commercial supporters of the subject or materials discussed in this manuscript. Significant financial interest or other relationship can include such things as grants or research support to the author or to the author's department, consultancies, employment, direct payments, retainers, patent-licensing arrangements, travel support to the author or the author's department, major stock holdings, etc. The intent of this disclosure is not to prevent an author with a significant financial or other relationship from making a contribution, but rather to provide readers of the publication with information on which they can make their own judgments. It remains for the reader to determine whether the author's interests or relationships may influence the presentation with regard to exposition or conclusion. Although every reasonable effort will be made by the editorial office to obtain the required information, the IAC, its affiliated societies, the publisher and the editorial board members cannot be held responsible for incorrect and/or deficient data supplied by the authors.
